

The Northern Michigan University Lydia M. Olson Library is pleased to present

NATIVE VOICES

NATIVE PEOPLES' CONCEPTS OF HEALTH AND ILLNESS

February 3 - March 17

Explore this interactive exhibit that examines concepts of health and medicine. Exhibit features more than one hundred interviews with tribal leaders, healers, physicians and educators.

Sponsored by the Lydia M. Olson Library, the Center for Native American Studies, the School of Nursing, and the Sociology and Anthropology Department.

Along with this special panel discussion

A Lifetime of Native American Health

February 18 at 4:00 p.m.

Jamrich Hall 1322

with distinguished guests

Cathy Abramson

Sault Sainte Marie Tribe of Chippewa Indians. Council Member; Chair of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Secretary's Tribal Advisory Committee; Member, National Indian Health Board.

Tony Abramson, Jr.

Supervisor, Traditional Medicine Program, Sault Sainte Marie Tribe of Chippewa Indians.

Raeanne Madison

Program Coordinator at the Inter-Tribal Council of Michigan Department of Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Services.

With moderator, Dr. Alex Ruuska

Associate professor, NMU Sociology and Anthropology Department

Visit nmu.edu/cnas or call 906-227-1397.